

Next Steps

In the next several weeks, the IDOT Study Team will review all the comments received as a result of this meeting and share them with the CAG at their next meeting.

The Study Team, working closely with the CAG members, will begin refining the corridor locations and eliminating those that are least favorable.

Once the corridors have been refined, reduced in number, and their effects on people and the environment evaluated, another public meeting, like today's meeting, will be held. A similar round of analysis and refinement will take place after that meeting.

The Corridor Study will end with a public hearing to receive comments on the preferred corridor. After the hearing a Final Corridor Study Report will be produced.

Upon approval of the Report, the Phase I process can move forward to the Alignments Study Stage, if funding is available.

Corridor Phase Process

